

Desert Jet Center Supports Angel Flight West Volunteer Pilots

on Missions to the Greater Palm Springs Area and Coachella Valley

Desert Jet Center, the desert's newest and highest rated Fixed Base Operator (FBO) located at the Jacqueline Cochran Regional Airport (KTRM) in Thermal, California, announced it will waive all ramp fees for all Angel Flight West volunteer pilots conducting flight missions in and out of the Palm Springs area and Coachella Valley.

“this wonderful organization,” said Roman Mendez, Desert Jet Center General Manager. “We are proud to support the Angel Flight West mission and their outstanding team of volunteer pilots. We thank them for everything they do, and we look forward to touching more lives together!”

“We’re already looking forward to sharing our success stories of lives changed thanks to the gift of flight,” stated Mary Hunter, Angel Flight West Development Director. “Thank you again Denise for your leadership, and the whole Desert Jet team for all of your hard work and passion to transform your community.”

Volunteer pilots donate their time and aircraft to assist the nonprofit organization, Angel Flight West (AFW) by providing free, air travel transportation for children and adults with serious medical conditions or other compelling needs. In support of the program and the philanthropic work of its volunteer pilots, Desert Jet Center is waiving ramp fees for all AFW missions arriving at the executive FBO in KTRM. The savings will help pilots minimize their personal costs associated with their donated flight.

With Desert Jet Center’s designation as the CAA Preferred FBO at KTRM, pilots who are CAA members can also receive additional discounts on fuel costs, saving their out-of-pocket costs further. Voting to renew the FBO’s preferred status at KTRM will begin July 1st. ACN

Desert Jet Center’s founder, Denise Wilson, flew her first Angel Flight West mission in 1998. Looking back, flying for Angel Flight West had a significant influence on her appreciation for the impact volunteer flying can have on both the pilot and the passenger.

With the construction of Desert Jet Center’s new terminal and hangar facility nearing completion, the FBO will serve as a warm welcome to the many pilots who graciously volunteer their aircraft and time to assist those in need.
